Three reasons not to miss the symposium

An inclusive event to build community and grow the industry.

1

Programming on 3 themes with something for everyone

Social: Biking for leisure and recreation

Economic: Tourism and regional development

Terrain: Designing, managing and developing MTB infrastructure

2

Workshop, network, share

Distinctive feature: The Symposium gives everyone the time and tools to share and network with like-minded enthusiasts based on your location, organization type, strengths, and challenges.

On the agenda: Two half-days of participatory workshops to think, talk, and work together on the future of mountain biking.

3

Time to ride and enjoy the destination

We saved the best for last! On top of enriching discussions and workshops, the Symposium has plenty of opportunities to hit the trails by day and get your party on with fun evening gatherings and unforgettable rides.

The Symposium has great events for people from every corner of the industry, from hands-on trail builders to spreadsheet warriors to the community-builders whose ideas and outreach are taking the sport in exciting directions.
